Greetings,

Please consider what it would be like if you were a lifelong atheist, young or old, all you family, friends, and coworkers shared your belief, and were presented with a serious challenge to your understanding.

Consider being a Muslim, perhaps had even performed the Hajj, honestly honored the Jesus as the Messiah (Peach Be Upon Him), and were given a serious challenge that Jesus is the Lord, the creator of heaven and earth.

Consider being a Mormon, perhaps delighting in the magnificence and pageantry that occurs in the numerous temples, and given an understanding that Jesus was not created or has a brother, but is the creator.

Being any one of the above would be heart-wrenching. It would set before you the question of trying to pursue the truth, or stay where you have been with that gnawing in your heart and mind that you are living a lie. It sets before you the question of is the truth important enough to risk everything.

Consider being a part of an institutional church that proclaims the Scripture alone, proclaims the Trinity, but bends a little. Perhaps you find confidence in your institution because they follow the Regulative Principle of Worship, they fence the table for communion, and even fence the pulpit. What if they also fence any challenge from Scripture?

I have been on the wrong side of this in my pursuit of the truth, of the Lord. The Lord scourged me to show me all the more who He is. I have a long way to go, and I pursue the challenge to know Him well, and to be challenged by my brothers to examine the Scripture, and earnestly contend for the faith.

Please consider the attached 8 minute video. A higher resolution version, allowing you to clearly see the references, can be downloaded at: <http://Family.Kozlowski.org/2017-09-30+2>. Please feel free to share it as you see fit. The full context is on the <http://Family.Kozlowski.org> website. Dialog is welcomed.

Please offer challenges or correction from Scripture.

There is a direct challenge to the leadership, members, and visitors of Covenant Presbyterian Church in Chattanooga, Tennessee. Please share this with others that may not have received this as it is a challenge to you all. I welcome your response.

Are you the Atheist who refuses a challenge? Are you the Muslim who will not validate his faith? Are you the Mormon who refuses to look at anything but his temples? Are you the Christian who believes you are because of an institution? Does "test everything" (1Th 5:21) not include the institution?

Respectfully,

John Kozlowski
