Subject: Mormons, Excuses, You and I

Mr. Cross,

I am now dealing with two Mormons, one in Utah, and one face-to-face. We have serious dialog, especially with the latter. This is what love does. And I am ready to give an answer (1Peter3:15).

In a separate event I just spent over an hour encouraging a man from Scripture and tearing apart his excuses that he knew he was using and pointing to obedience to the Lord. It was a joy. It was what love does. It has been mutually encouraging.

You have claimed Christ. You have claimed Scripture as your final authority. It would be a joy, and obedience to the Lord, to have similar dialogs with you. The offer and desire remains.

Respectfully,

John Kozlowski
