Subject: Reconcile 30 ● My Family and the Panic-Demic

Dear Family, I hope you find this worth your time. It comes from a concerned husband and dad. Audio only is attached.

We had a joke in our family when we talked about history. It was said that unlike others who read about it, I was there. Well, now that I am 64, I have a bit more history that I can say I was there, but also have had more time to do some study of history. One of the areas of study is propaganda. It started perhaps with pro-life issues, but grew to politics in general, and then a strong focus on communications security. Then there is the broader use of technology to influence culture, and credentials became more important than facts.

When my friend Chris coined the term “panic-demic” it was something to latch onto. I see it in stores. There are a growing number wearing gloves or facemasks. The store that I no longer patronize, Abundant Living, locked their doors and you had to call in and they would deliver to your car. I had an email dialog with the owner and suggested to him that he just handed his store to Amazon. He locked out healthy people without cellphones from the health food store.

When I visited friends on Sunday it was clear you could point out errors in the panic, but the rebuttal continued with “what about this...” If you live in fear, reason and evidence are useless.

When I was recording the video, I got a phone call from Nirav, who is sick. He was very concerned when I stated that I did 21 miles of hikes in the last three days. He lives in fear. I don't.

You might also notice that I said a whole lot of things that are politically incorrect. Today, I can mostly get away with it. Tomorrow, it might not be that way. There are a growing number of countries where what I said would land me in jail. It is coming to the US. Obviously speaking boldly, clearly, and unambiguously, as commanded in Scripture, has cost me and therefore cost my family in the past. It will probably continue. What is more important, living in fear, or living in love while trusting the Lord?

Over the years I have stated that if you want to be part of the system, you need to say “hail victory”. It is being lived out AGAIN! Do you see that, or are you also running scared.

It has been disappointing when in rare dialog with Jim Cross he took a pragmatic approach to Matthew 6:24 “You cannot serve God and money.” I must follow what the Lord said, not be pragmatic because the Lord doesn't not give us license to do so.

Considering the events post mentioning to my wife about reconciliation would be seen with a tenth child, it seems Genesis 1:28 “Be fruitful and multiply” must be out of date. After all, that is so Old Testament. As well as Genesis 2:24.

I have frequently used Joshua 24:15, but I have gotten in the habit of a modified version: “But as for me, I will serve the LORD.” Do you notice what is missing? It doesn’t have to be that way.

I love you all!
