Water, Zadok, and Family,

There was a tiny bit of hope seen last Friday as I got an email from my wife. It was a simple light pleasantry that I wondered if it was a source of hope or salt in a wound. In pursuing hope, I made a request to my wife that she would confirm that hope by sending me a photo of my youngest two sons, Walter and Zadok, since when I look at one of the few photos I have of them, if it is only one of them I don't know which. I haven't seen my sons in almost 8 years and I don't know what they look like.

Nothing arrived.

It was my desire to encourage Walter and Zadok, irrespective of the lack of that shown me, so today's video is addressed to the two of you. It is something that I hope sinks in as the reference used is the Bible (that would be the book under all the dust, or what people wipe their feet on when entering Meadowview). You might ask why that parenthetical statement? There is a difference between having a Bible, reading a Bible, believing the Bible, and living the commands in the Bible. I hope the two of you grow to know that difference and live in obedience to the Lord and do so with joy. Consider Deuteronomy 6:5 and Leviticus 19:18 as a good starting point. Yes, that is Old Testament, but rather vital don't you think?

I have been sending DVDs to others, and will probably send the two of you a set this week considering the content of today's video. Over the years when I have discussed our family situation with others, there are a few who say something like "just move on" or "give up". But for the most part they have not been part of those who at least claim to follow Christ. Then there are many who have stated they felt encouraged to see someone who has not given up on reconciliation. Considering the encouragement to others and the ability to have yet another copy of these videos available to my family, I am considering putting the entire "Reconcile 30" series on Brighteon. Obviously this exposes our family to a wider audience, but it will probably only be a few dozen. I'd asked what others thought, but is there any point?

Walter and Zadok, please tell my wife, your mom, I love her.
