George, and Family,

It was a good day overall for me and I hope also for all of you. Attached is a video with three points.

1: My friend Chris and I continue to mutually encourage each other, both physically and in obedience to Christ. While we have hiked together for years, he has only recently begun to set a goal of at least 10 miles a week on his own. He is encouraged by me to do so. Years ago my goal was 10 miles a week, then 20, now a marathon (26). More often than not I make it, but have had a few weeks of being a bit shy. I started the day at 23, but do to his encouragement ended the day at 30. That is a model of what brothers do.

2: I saw another example of love today between Lynn and Gary. It is described in the video.

3: After a discussion on the recent videos that set a lot of theological foundation, I was encouraged to add the Scripture references to the videos and then make them public in Brighteon, Bitchute, and YouTube. The title will probably be updated so they can be logically grouped as foundational theology. I have thought about what is said in so many of them and what I have heard in sermons over the decades. I don't recall things like a description of "Andrizomai" and how it is applied. So I am willing. Or perhaps I should quote Isaiah as I did yesterday "here am I, send me".

Then there was the direct challenge to George. Of all that I know, or at least know a little, my guess is George might be someone who could keep up with me in walking. As I have expressed, I am a terrible runner and other things, but I am easily in the top 1% of walkers. George, my guess is that you might be able to give me a challenge if you decide to try. Find a place you can walk a nine mile path and do it in two hours or less. Once you get to that point, then try it with me and see if you can beat me. You have a 45 year advantage. Can you do it? The gauntlet is thrown down before you. Take the challenge!

I love you all. Please tell my wife I want to take a slow walk with her and that I love her!
