Mr. Cross,

I have a real concern for the next generation and have made an effort to challenge and encourage those I meet. Few respond, but some do. Two in particular, Alex and Trey, remain in my prayers as I see hope in them. But then there are my own kids.

I just sent an email about the video I watched "Debunking Evolution - Why Creation (Lesson 1)". It really got to me. It wasn't the evidence they presented, as I can make the same case, and do so for both sides. It was the hope I saw in them.

Near the end the woman representing evolution sheds the label she is wearing and offers a serious challenge to the viewer. I was in a pool of tears seeing that as it represented hope.

I now make the case from Scripture that the Bible is not a religious book, but rather condemns the religious. That the Bible is science since by definition science is something observed. The Big Band and evolution are theories backed by religious fervor, but the Lord witnessed His creation, and therefore Genesis is science. This has now become easy stuff.

What is hard is to deal with those who cling to their institutions with religious fervor, such as the corporation, the government, or the institutional church. Those things take precedents over the Lord's fundamental command to love. This is seen clearly in 1st Timothy 4 as I recently pointed out with some detail in "Postcard Reconciliation".

What I saw in those two young people today brought joy and hope to my heart. I wonder if that will be true with my own family. I wonder if it will be true with you. If money is the barrier, we serve a different Lord, and you have no hope.
